Glenda is an inspirational teacher. She has taught in PNG for over 50 years. She passionately believes in the importance of education. These are her words to students:

“To become good citizens of PNG, each of us must identify our place in our own culture and recognise the duties we have as citizens of our nation. As a result of your studies, I hope that you will become people of purpose, worthy sons and daughters of Papua New Guinea, who value national unity, and show tolerance and respect in your relationships with others.”
